CDDRL PRE & POSTDOCTORAL FELLOWSHIP

Improving governance is an urgent global challenge. The Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law (CDDRL) seeks to understand how the different elements of good governance (an effective, transparent, and democratic state, and a rule of law that protects human rights and controls corruption) interact with the different dimensions of economic development (growth, poverty reduction, and improved human well-being), and to use this understanding to investigate the most promising avenues for institutional change and policy innovation.

ABOUT THE PROGRAM:

CDDRL welcomes applications from pre-doctoral students at the write-up stage and from new postdoctoral scholars working in any of the four program areas of democracy, development, evaluating the efficacy of democracy promotion, and rule of law. Applicants working at the intersection of two or more of these issue areas will receive preferential consideration. The Center expects to award three to four fellowships for the 2012-13 academic year.

Fellows spend the academic year (9 months) at Stanford University completing their project, participating in seminars, and interacting with each other and the resident faculty and research staff.

TO APPLY:

Application form and additional information about the application process can be found on our website at: <http://cddrl.stanford.edu/fellowships/>
